

the National Parent Forum of Scotland

The National Parent Forum of Scotland wishes to reiterate its support of the broad principles of Getting It Right For Every Child, as it echoes our own aim to help every pupil maximise their full potential. We know that partnership with parents is crucial to successful outcomes for all, and feel that many parts of the Children and Young People's Act support this. It is important that parents and their children feel supported, secure, and valued in their schools and communities, as is their right.

The NPFS appreciates the range of parent views on the Act and is sensitive to these. As with many other influencing factors on children's education we will always strive to keep parents at the centre. We hope that everyone continues to enjoy the summer holidays and preparations for the return to school in August.

Joanna Murphy Chair

National Parent Forum of Scotland